Closed Captioning Service

Closed captioning is the process of providing visual display of the audio portion of a program through readable text. Closed Captioning increases the reach of a program to not only the hearing impaired, but also to a global audience (those who do not speak English as their primary language). In addition, it provides assistance while watching a program at crowded or noisy places like public, social or recreational meeting sites. Furthermore, the FCC mandates closed captioning of most programs being broadcast on-air or online.
